

Strong interest as Clas Ohlson opens new store in Kleppe, Norway

Many customers were present when Clas Ohlson's new store in Kleppe, just outside Stavanger, opened this morning. The new store strengthens Clas Ohlson's presence in the region.

"It feels fantastic to open our new store. This establishment will make us even more accessible to customers in the Stavanger region," says Christian Egeland, Sales & Operations Manager.

The store will be Clas Ohlson's sixth in and around Stavanger. It's located in Jærhagen Senter in Kleppe, southwest of Stavanger. The shopping centre houses around 60 shops, and the new Clas Ohlson store has a sales area of 1,101 square metres.

"We are establishing ourselves in an attractive location. We have also secured a large store where we can offer our full range. At this time of year, our extensive Christmas range will be particularly prominent," says Christian Egeland.

The store opening is Clas Ohlson's second new launch this autumn. Next week, the company will open another store in Vantaa, Finland. Three additional openings for the 2025/2026 financial year have already been confirmed.
