

Clas Ohlson opens new store in Oslo

Clas Ohlson will open a new store in Oslo. The store is Clas Ohlson's fourth store in central Oslo.

The new store will be opened near Oslo Central Station at Nygata 2-6. The store will have a sales area of 1600 square meters spread over two floors. Clas Ohlson's office in Oslo will also move to the new address.

"We get a very good location in the most central parts of Oslo. A lot of people will pass the store every day," says Rune Johansen, Country Operations Manager.

The new store will open in March 2024.

"We have been in Oslo for 32 years and we are very appreciated. I am very much looking forward to opening a fourth store in the city center and making it even easier for Oslo residents to find everything they need for their home fixing," says Rune Johansen, Country Operations Manager.

Earlier this week, it was also announced that Clas Ohlson will open a new store in central Sundsvall in Sweden. With the new store in Oslo, Clas Ohlson now has seven planned store openings during the 2023/2024 financial year. Last Thursday, Clas Ohlson also opened a new store in Kristiansand in Norway.
